The Lost Art of Writing

Give me three seven sentence paragraphs on the following topics:

- What is something that makes you particularly annoyed?
- What is the best form of music, and why?
- Write me a sci-fi short story.

Remember you are not doing this for no reason. Remember these can be used to help improve your grade by having your lowest grade dropped, but you MUST take this creative writing seriously.

There are a few different things you need to do depending on what you choose.

All three you will work on until they are complete, but failure to work on them will mean the assignment of a much more difficult piece of writing.

In the First One:

- You need to explain what it is that annoys you.
- Why it annoys you so much.
- Where you believe that comes from.
- Whether or not there is anything that can be done to change it.
- This can be anything, within the bounds of reason, that annoys you, school or not.

In the Second One:

- Basically make this your personal argument for one particular musical style.
- Make me want to listen to your form of music.

In the Third One:

- Make the opening paragraph interesting and intriguing.
  - The other two paragraphs are of lesser importance right now. I want an outstanding opening paragraph.
  - This is obviously because the importance of there being a need to grab my attention
- Also, with this one, you may not use ANY first person language.